Magazine Sales Rise, Sandy Watson Leads

The annual magazine sales conducted by the band members was an overwhelming success this year. The high school group sold $1,488.41 worth of magazines. The junior high total was $1,486.37.

Prizes were given to individuals who sold the largest amounts. Prizes, which range from one dollar to fifty dollar values, are partly furnished by the Curtis Circulation Company. The rest was paid from the band's profit.

The largest amount of orders by the high school members was taken by Sandra Watson, whose total was $102.85. Joyce Wiseman was next with a $77.00 total.

In the junior high, Randy Vogt was high, collecting $75.25. Stuart Rothrock came in second with a total of $61.00.

These figures show a definite increase in sales. In years past the high school has sold around $500.00 and the junior high around $1,000.00.

CHRISTMAS VACATION

DEC. 22 - JAN. 3

BONITA BROCKMAN Student And Author

We have a real, live, honest-to-goodness author in our midst. Bonita Brockman, sophomore, has just had a poem published in the December issue of Ingenue magazine which has a nationwide circulation. Bonita wrote the poem, "Kaleidoscope of War" last spring. The poem appeared in Ingenue's "Your Lively Arts" section which contains articles, short stories, pictures, and poems by talented young people.

This is the second piece of Bonita's writing which has been published. Last summer her essay entitled "What is a Family?" was published by Our Sunday Visitor. This is a weekly Catholic newspaper which is read throughout the United States.

Donald Abbott; Miss Gertrude, El-len Olson; Constance, Becky Webb, will be presented by members of Mr. Rawlings, Mike Monahan and the Dramatics Club during an assembly on December 22. The play will be directed by Delbert Hayden and Nancy Timberlake.

Cast Members

The play is centered around accident-prone Arnold, who just can't seem to do anything right. When Carol asks him over for Christmas Eve her family is in a panic. There's one merry accident after another.

The cast includes Dianne, Missy Forsythe; Mother, Susan Curtis; Father, Frank Ordner; Carol, Jill Moss; Jack, Mike Miles; Arnold

Christmas Music

After the play a program of Christmas music and songs will be presented by the school band and chorus. The chorus, under the direction of Mr. True and accompanied on the piano by Mrs. True, will sing several numbers: "Three Carols for Christmas", "The Snow Lay on the Ground", "Little Drummer Boy", "Fum, Fum, Fum," and "We Wish You a Merry Christmas." The band, under the direction of Mr. Trueblood, will give its annual performance of Christmas music.

three of the athletes in the speech class. Monty Schneider answered questions concerning his running in track and cross country. Bill Baelz was asked questions about football and Bill Kirkham about basketball. Besides each athlete giving a summary of the sport in which he participated, they also gave their personal opinions to general questions, such as, "Are sports over-emphasized in our school?" or "How important is winning?" Other programs this year will include speeches, debates, skits and readings from well-known plays.

Sophs Take ITED FRESHMAN SCORES IN

The Sophomores took the Iowa Test of Educational Development on December 14 and 15. The ITED is a battery of nine objective tests designed to provide a comprehensive and dependable description of the general educational development of the high school pupil.

The major purposes of the testing program are: first, to enable teachers and counselors to keep themselves more intimately and reliably acquainted with the educational development of each high school pupil; second, to provide the school administration with more dependable and objective basis for evaluating the total educational offering of the school.

The scores on the freshman Differential Aptitude Test are in the counselors' office. Mr. Norman will call each freshman to his office within the next few weeks and help them profile their aptitudes. He will then advise them on future courses of study.

"Here's A Gift!" She Said Present-ly

By BERTHA FERREE

It is about that time of year again when everyone alive rushes to the stores to do their Christmas shopping. If you have never experienced the madness of such an excursion, then you are missing something!

The department stores are gaily decorated with the spirit of Christmas in mind. Their windows are filled with catchy advertisements like "Want To Get That Special Someone In Your Life Something Special? — We Have It." So you decide to see what these fine money-grabbers have to offer.

You're lucky if you get through the doors with so many people entering and leaving and a few not even sure of that. You fight your way in, grab a cart (if you have an extra big list) and nonchalantly find a place in the busy lines of shoppers. The aisles are wide enough for two-way traffic, but it is up to you to figure out which line is coming and which one is going.

Ignoring on-coming shoppers, you go the way you think is less busy. The friendly store attendants are there all of the time in case you need them. At least, that is the way it is supposed to be: Only, how can they help you if they don't know anything themselves. Have you ever asked an employee for help? They usually "help" by sending you to another attendant either because they can not leave the cosmetic department or because Mildred is in charge of the department you're looking for. By the time you've found what you want you qualify as a registered store clerk.

There is also the difficulty of finding an article you want that is still in good condition. The toy department especially offers a wide variation of mutilated dolls and automotive scale-model cars with one or two wheels missing. The most fun is finding a sticky sucker clinging to the last stuffed toy in stock.

The farther you go along the aisles, the more useless it gets to continue shopping. The people who have to walk all over you and knock you aside because they are in a bigger hurry than you outnumber the kind and courteous shoppers. But, you can't give up now, not after all the trouble you have already experienced to get this far!

Another thing you will enjoy is the several different stores you have to go to (as not one store will have all you may be shopping for.) This gives you a variety of shopping bags to drag around with you every place you go thereafter. Your arms and hands get numb after an hour of holding these bags which only get heavier with each purchase.

By the time you have completed this ritual of shopping you may feel like not one step was worth it, but just think of the friends and relatives you will make happy at Christmas by the gift you give them. Never mind the tiresome days spent in numerous department stores searching everywhere for that "special something".

So you really have missed out on an experience if you have never been in the mad rush of Christmas shoppers. And you used to think Santa Claus had it rough riding that sleigh of his through the frosty night air delivering your Christmas presents!

FRANK SANDULLO TALKS TO FUTURE HOMEMAKERS

Frank Sandullo talked to the Future Homemakers on his native country, Italy. Subjects stressed were the everyday life of the people, their customs, school system and social life. Of special interest to the girls was the comparison of the Italian and American customs of dating and marriage.

Frank's talk was a great contribution to the theme of the year's program "Citizenship Around the World."

Marmelstein Speaks Out

Our own Ruth Marmelstein is on T.V. Honest! She has been signed by WLKY T-V in Louisville to do an "Exercise for Fitness" program every evening just after the end of the late movie. Fortunately, Miss Marmelstein still attends school here. She was kind enough to allow us to interview her during a recent lull in her busy schedule. She had several enraged remarks to make:

Reporter: "How do you feel, Miss Marmelstein?"

Miss Marmelstein: "With my fingers."

Reporter: "I had the T.V. on last night."

Miss Marmelstein: "Did it fit?"
Reporter: "You're a real card, Miss Marmelstein. By the way, could you show us a couple of your exercises?"

Miss Marmelstein: "In my miniskirt!"

Reporter: "Yes, if you don't mind."

The Pantherette Belongs To You

This paper was created and is being published for you. The main purpose of any newspaper is to meet the needs of its "specific public" and in the case of the Pantherette that specific public is the students of Corydon Central High School.

This year we have tried to give you a bigger voice in the paper by taking student opinion polls. Something we have not had this year is letters to the editor from you. We welcome such letters whether they are written in praise or in criticism of something. Just bring your letters to 204 or give them to any staff member. All letters must be signed but the name will be withheld on publication if the writer so desires.

A True Meaning Of Christmas

What comes to your mind when you hear the word Christmas? Does the real meaning of Christmas capture your thoughts when someone mentions the holiday to you? In most instances, No! Perhaps you begin to visualize the beautifully decorated homes that are scattered about the stores in which you have to fight your way through an army of frantic people, in order to purchase that one special Christmas gift you cannot do without.

Gifts! Everyone thinks it would not be Christmas if gifts were not a chief concern in the holiday happenings. The majority of people immediately let their minds float away as they concentrate on the presents they will receive from their family, friends, and relatives. Such things will cross their minds as, "What is the value of the article?", "Where did it come from?", "Will it fit?", "What if I don't like it?", etc.

Maybe the delicious aroma of turkey and cranberry sauce pass under your nose, as you think of the wonderful family dinner that you will eat on Christmas. Or maybe you are the type of person who enjoys Christmas vacation mainly so you can get out of homework.

In many homes of the world today, the children have never heard the story about the first Christmas. Naturally, they are able to tell about Santa Claus and his sleigh with "eight tiny reindeer", but they are unable to tell about the Christ child who was born in a manger. Parents have been too busy to tell them the story of God's Son who was born on Christmas. Many of these parents have forgotten the meaning of Christmas because of the wealth of the world around them.

Try to visualize the less fortunate at Christmas and receive great joy from giving presents. It is a much greater feeling to make someone else happy than to be pleased yourself. Christmas is a real thing only when you realize its true meaning.

OPINION POLL

HOLIDAY TRUCE IN VIET NAM?

Last year at this time the United States was successful in bringing about a Christmas truce in Viet Nam. Some thought the truce was an initial step toward peace, but, despite it, the bombings started again. This year we are trying another truce. "Is such a truce wise, and why or why not?" is the question for this month's opinion poll.

Larry Ordner, a freshman thinks "A Christmas truce is fine. If both sides can agree to such a truce, then it might lead to a peaceful settlement of the Viet Nam War."

Mr. Bickel, government teacher, also believes that a Christmas truce is a good idea. He said, "Yes

I would favor another holiday truce. The negotiating that is necessary to bring about a brief truce might some day be the means of arranging a more permanent settlement of the war."

However, there were many who didn't think that a Christmas truce was such a good thing.

Allen Hoskins, a senior, replied, "Personally, I think that a Christmas truce is stupid. A truce would only give the Viet Cong time to build up forces for a stronger offense. The Viet Cong did not keep the truce last year very well, and I hardly think that they have changed in the past year. I think that the war should be stepped up, and Johnson should let General Westmorland make more of the decisions concerning the war."

your head and secure your big toe in your right arm-pit. Deep breathily. 10 repetitions.

2. For an occluded tibia: Assume swimming position on living-room floor. After a little free-style stroking, roll over on your back and insert a large feather pillow under your head. Think sleep. Rest is more important than exercise. After all, which would you rather be, rested and fat or tired and skinny?

3. Exercise to convince your parents that they have been forcing you to study too hard: Sit down to supper as usual. Ask to be passed the mashed potatoes. After securing the mashed potatoes, place six heaping spoonfuls on your plate. Do likewise with the gravy. After you are sure you have your parents attention, lean forward rapidly and vigorously insert your face into your mashed potatoes and gravy. They will think you have fainted from exhaustion. Even if they don't, mashed potatoes is great for acne.

Pat Stiles, another senior, expressed, "I don't think that a Christmas truce will be very helpful in bringing us one step toward peace. United States military officials reported that the Viet Cong did not fulfill their obligations under the 1965 Christmas truce. I think perhaps the best thing to do would be to increase planning and to step up the action in Viet Nam."

John Mathews, also a senior, explained, "A Christmas truce is fine in theory, but, like many things, it does not do what it is planned to do. While the Americans are forcing the Viet Cong will be rebuilding, restocking, and regrouping. We will be giving them a chance to become stronger. The United States is expected to make a truce for the sake of appearing peace-minded. We are in a real war and appearances aren't going to win it. For every day we give the enemy to rebuild, the war is going to last many, many days longer. If we're going to fight this war then let's go ahead and do it."

SANTA CLAUS NORTH POLE

Dear Santa,

It must be hard trying to please everyone at Christmas. This year the students at Corydon Central have decided to make your job easier by telling you in advance just what makes you happy. Some of these things won't fit into a stocking over the fireplace or a package under the tree, but we know you'll do your best. As you know, we've all tried to be good little boys and girls and we're sure you'll give us exactly what we deserve. In fact, that's what we're afraid of. FUTURE NURSES TOUR HOSPITAL Spanish Students See "Royal Hunt"

The Future Nurses' Club toured Kosair Crippled Children's Hospital Saturday, November 19.

The trip featured detailed tours of many of the wards and departments. The girls were shown the boys' and girls' wards on the first floor ranging in ages from one to twenty-one. Also on this floor is the dentist office for the children and the diet kitchens.

They were then taken to the ground floor where all of the physical therapy is given. As it was a Saturday, the girls were not able to see any of the therapy done, but they did see the equipment which is used.

Next toured was the upstairs where the contagious disease ward is. The hospital has provided for all the needs of the children. There is a teaching program consisting of both the grammar and secondary grades. All subjects ordinarily taught are included in the program with the exceptions of Physics and Chemistry.

Sundays for the children offers the religious aspect as students from the Baptist Seminary come to teach Sunday school classes. A priest is also there to offer Mass on Sunday mornings.

Those members of the club who made the trip were Diana Albin and Lonnie Cavins and accompanied by Mildred Cavins.

Fifteen members of the Spanish Club and four teachers journeyed to Indiana University to see the play "Royal Hunt to the Sun". They left the high school at 1:00 p.m. November 19 and arrived on campus around 3:30. The club members spent the afternoon touring the campus. They also visited the Memorial Union Building where they bought souvenirs, ate supper and then returned to Daniel Read Hall.

The play, "Royal Hunt to the Sun" told the history of Pizarro's capture of the Incas. Even though the scenery was very simple, it seemed elaborate and beautiful due to the different colors of lighting.

Those who went were: Debby Blank, Delbert Hayden, Karen McCoy, Denise Melton, Lester Melton, Penny Melton, Elaine Miller, Pam Richard, Cindy Robson, Pat Seipel, Darlene Shewmaker, Betty Sonner, Jane Swisher, Susan Weber and Norma Windell. The teachers who drove were Miss Puryear, Mrs. Enlow, Miss Gibbs and Miss Rothrock.

The members plan to have a candy sale at a future ballgame for a money-making project. They have also adopted an official pin for the club. They will go Christmas caroling before Christmas.

Council To Decide On Coffee Vender

Our student council has really been on the ball this past month. Someone had suggested to them that a coffee and hot chocolate vending machine might be good to have in the school. Liking the idea, they formed a committee to look further into it. Votes were 9 taken in the home rooms and it was found that two-thirds of the student body were in favor of it. This information was given to the whole student council. Now discussions and debates are going on among them, and a decision will be reached soon.

Another problem that our council is dealing with is that of the sock hops. You may have noticed that many of our sock hops are being invaded by outsiders who often are quite a bit older than a school age. Certainly we don't want to keep out graduates who are interested in the school, but the great majority of these outsiders are only looking for trouble. The student council is now searching for new rules and regulation for future sock hops that would solve this problem.

The student council meets under the direction of Mr. Norman.
